Peer Ethics and Professional Development

Peer Recovery Specialists often voice concerns about lack of professional training to help them advance their careers. This Peer Professional Development Training will provide a deeper level of knowledge by expanding on ethical standards and principles. Participants will learn how to apply basic professional skills, increasing their ability to serve individuals and their workforce. In addition, peers will be able to identify their strengths and address their weaknesses for growth and career advancement.

Seating is limited. Registration for professionals certified through DCB will be processed on a first come, first serve basis. Those who are not certified through DCB will be placed on a waiting list and will be notified if space is available at least two weeks prior to the training.

Presenter Bio: Brandee Izquierdo is the Executive Director of SAFE Project. Her drive and determination are built on making an impact within behavioral health, promoting long-term recovery, and ensuring communities are educated and have the tools necessary to combat the addiction epidemic. Before leading the SAFE Project team, Brandee worked for Faces & Voices of Recovery as the Director of Advocacy and Outreach. In addition, she served as the Associate Director of Special Populations with Behavioral Health System Baltimore and as the Director of Consumer Affairs for the state of Maryland's Behavioral Health Administration. In these leadership roles, Brandee has led advocacy efforts to expand access to behavioral health services and recovery support services while providing technical assistance both nationally and internationally, empowering others within the recovery movement. Her ability to build relationships and bridge gaps within behavioral health, community services, and criminal justice have been a catalyst for global peer expansion.

As a subject matter expert with Center for Social Innovation, Policy Research Associates, SAMHSA and the International Certification and Reciprocity Consortium (IC&RC), Brandee has made vast contributions within behavioral health and within the recovery movement around public policy, outreach, and workforce development. Additionally, Brandee has made a significant impact within the judicial system, advocating for access to treatment and recovery and is the principle investigator of Maryland's integrated-Forensic Peer Recovery Specialist curriculum.

Brandee's passion for service work and knowledge of recovery support services extends beyond behavioral health. With a master's degree in Public Administration and a bachelor's degree in Government and Public Policy, Brandee is currently working on her Doctorate in Public Administration with a specialization in Administration Justice.
